WILLIAM FINDLAY,

IN the name and by the authority of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania,

By William Findlay

GOVERNOR

of the said Commonwealth.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it is a dictate of reason and a duty enjoined by the Scriptures of truth, to acknowledge our obligations and offer up thanks to Almighty God, for benefits conferred and calamities averted. I have therefore deemed it proper to issue this proclamation, recommending that THURSDAY, the 19th of November next, be set apart by all denominations of Christians within the commonwealth for THANKSGIVING and PRAYER; and that they abstain as far as practicable, on that day from their worldly avocations, and assemble at their respective places of public worship, and unite in devout thankfulness to the AUTHOR of every good and perfect gift, for the blessings of peace, the general prevalence of health, the exemption from famine and pestilence, the fruitful seasons, the religious and civil privileges that we enjoy; and above all for the cheering messages of grace and salvation by the Redeemer; and that they implore, through his merits that we may be cleansed from the defilement of sin, "the reproach of any people," and be united to Him by a true and living faith, and clothed with that "righteousness which exalteth a nation," that the enjoyment of our spiritual and temporal blessings may be continued, with a due sence of our obligations to, and dependence on the Divine Source from whence they flow.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state at Harrisburgh, this fifteenth day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighteen, and of the commonwealth the forty-third.

By the Governor,

JAMES TRIMBLE, Dep. Sec.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 3, 1818.

The Wanderer,
BY EDWARD ENNUI.

No. XII.

" 'Twas no fantastic object, but a truth,
A real truth." MASSINGER.

A rambling disposition, which for many years, has kept me continually in motion, and has been as unprofitable to my purse as it was grateful to my fancy, led me some time since to visit a spot which has excited much curiosity. I saw at Harmony a hardy industrious people, cultivating a fertile soil and reaping abundant harvests, without enjoying the fruits of their indefatigable labours. United as one society, and governed by a chief who enjoyed all the authority of a legislator, a magistrate, and a priest, the joint product of their exertions were gathered into a common stock from which each drew as much as was necessary to procure him a coarse raiment, and scanty sustenance. A peaceable deportment, a blind submission, and a contented ignorance, seemed to be the leading characteristics of this people. Their grounds and manufactories shewed them to be skilful artists and patient cultivators; while the neatness, order and regularity which prevailed in every department, was as creditable to the genius of the wily governor, as it was evinsive of the patience, abstemiousness, and perseverance of his deluded followers. To luxuries, pleasures and amusements, they were entire strangers; the hours of labour, rest, and refreshment, came with unvarying succession, and I doubt whether the sameness of their lives was relieved by any change greater than the vicar of Wakefield's migrations from the blue bed to the brown.

Leaving Harmony late in the day, I turned my steps again towards Pittsburgh. When I reached the Cranberry plains I was struck with the difference which I suddenly beheld in the aspect of the country. Instead of a rich foliage and a fertile soil, I saw a sterile uninhabited waste, covered with a meagre dwarfish herbage. But my reflections were interrupted, and my attention suddenly called to my horse who having been accommodated in the morning with a new pair of shoes by an awkward son of vulcan, began now to shew the same symptoms which are felt by a dapper beau when he first displays a new pair of boots. Being thus obliged to slacken my pace, while the shadows of night were closing fast around me, I felt not a little apprehensive that I should be obliged, like the children in the wood, to sup on berries and nestle among the leaves. Some hours after night however, I arrived at a cabin dignified with a sign post, and offering an hospitable invitation to both man and horse. But although mine host professed to furnish entertainment I must confess that I found but little to amuse or please me. and after swallowing the scanty meal which was set before me, I retired to a bed which I shall ever remember with the most lively emotions. Annoyed in various ways I tossed about until my brain became heated & my body feverish, while the events of the day and the scenes I had witnessed crouded my fancy in quick succession.

I had scarcely fallen asleep when I imagined myself again upon the Cranberry plains, now to appearance more dreary than ever, with my gallant steed expiring of hunger by my side. Alarmed at my situation and vexed with the loss I had sustained, I could no longer controul my feelings, and exclaimed, " capricious nature! frail and unstable—couldst thou not complete thy plan, or was it in a merry freak that deserts were created, or to fill up the measure of man's punishment?" I had scarcely uttered this apostrophe, when I beheld an unearthly form of majestic stature, standing beside me. " Rash mortal!" it exclaimed, " presume not to arraign the unsearchable decrees of Providence! Know that on the spot where thou now standest, an opulent city once flourished. Her streets were paved with marble, her towers aspired to the clouds, & her proud battlements frowned defiance. The hand of art embellished, and wealth and wisdom made her strong. The surrounding country, fertile by nature, and rendered productive by the health and industry of it's population, poured it's annual treasures into her bosom. But though blessed with all that was necessary to supply the wants of nature, or to furnish rational enjoyment, her inhabitants were neither happy nor contented. Imagination was ever busy in suggesting fictious appetites, & invention constantly employed in devising novelties to amuse the mind, indulge the body, or intoxicate the fancy. The liberality of nature seemed here to be misplaced, and where she was most prodigal she appeared to be the most unwise; for nothing that she gave was enjoyed in the manner in which it was intended. The boundless extent of the surrounding forest, and the inexhaustible fertility of the adjacent country, covered with numerous flocks, and abundant harvests, were insufficient to furnish the costly raiment which their pride demanded, or the delicious viands which alone could gratify their fastidious palates.

Every quarter of the globe contributed to decorate their persons. From one they procured robes of the finest texture from another pearls and precious metals, and from a third the teeth of quadrupeds and the plumage of the feathery race.—Their tables were loaded with the spicy productions of the east, and the luscious fruits of the south. The drink of the men was a mixture of exhiliarating juices and poisonous minerals, while the females impoverished their blood with acids, compressed their bodies with ligatures, and tortured their forms into fantastic shapes, by machinery formed of the bones of fishes and the skins of beasts. The hours of labour were wasted in idle dreams or enervating indolence, and those of rest devoted to giddy pleasures or pernicious vices. All their ingenuity was displayed, and all their industry exerted, in the fabrication of machinery to perform those labours for which their limbs were intended, and in discovering systems of philosophy to relieve them from the performance of duties, or to excuse the perpetration of crime and the pursuit of folly. The wealthy were penurious, and the sons of genius indolent. The learned were captious, & the virtuous austere. Riches were the criterion of worth, and poverty the badge of infamy. In the perverted minds of this deluded people truth was a hideous monster, and every object become disagreeable in proportion as it wore the appearance of reality. The vices that produced fictitious pleasure, were eagerly pursued, while the virtues that led to permanent enjoyment were as studiously neglected. They would do wrong without solicitation, but it was difficult to persuade them to do right, even though it cost them less trouble.

Those who thus perverted every gift intended for their benefit were unworthy to be permitted to exist. They were therefore cut off as cumberers of the soil. A fire from heaven descended upon them, consuming at once the ostentatious monuments of their pride, and the frail remnants of their former virtues The palace and the cottage were enveloped in the same conflagration, and the proud, the powerful, and the humble found a common grave. Thus it is that an unseen hand punishes the guilt that has grown enormous. When men neglect the warning voice which may be recognised in every affliction that is sent to punish crime, they become enemies to each other and hateful in the eye of heaven. They shall be consumed like this ungrateful city, which was reduced to ashes, and the ground on which it stood declared to be a desert, and cursed with eternal sterility.

FROM THE SUSSEX REGISTER.

Singular Phænomenon.—Whereas much inquiry has been excited, about a strange Phœnomenon, seen in the township of Oxford, on the 21st of August last, by several persons, and as it has been much misrepresented by passing through different hands, I have thought proper to call on the persons who saw it, and take their depositions, and present them to the publick, that every one may read for himself the plain facts as they appeared. Leaving observations for persons of a more sublime genius, I shall only add, that the deponents are known to me, and are persons of veracity. JOHN CLARKE.

Oxford, Sept. 5, 1818.

Sussex County, ss.—State of New-Jersey.

Personally appeared before me, William Ribble, one of the Justices of the peace, in and for said county, Wille Harman, and being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that on the 22d day of August last, about an hour before sun set, being alarmed at a great outcry amongst her children, went to the door to enquire the cause, when she, the said deponent, was directed to look across to a field belonging to Mr. Andrew Raub, and casting her eyes towards the place she, this deponent, saw a large number of men in white apparel, formed in three lines, moving across the field not far from a burying ground adjoining said field, and further this deponent saith, that after viewing them for some time, that five others appeared amongst them of a larger size, who seemed to be more actively engaged than the rest, moving very swiftly across the field, in every direction, they appearing rather to fly than to walk, as she could see the motions of their arms or wings as they appeared to her; and further this deponent saith, that after the five last mentioned appeared, the first seemed in great confusion, their lines broken, and pressing forward in such haste, that they appeared to be tumbling over each other, and by degrees ascended into the air and disappeared; and further this deponent saith, that immediately there appeared another company, not so white as the first, floating in the air, following the course of the first; and further this deponent saith, that they appeared in view for the space of nearly half an hour, and that within the time, she called David Harman and major Samuel Raub, who also saw the same.

Question. Did you see any thing that appeared like arms or weapons of any kind amongst them?

Answer. No I did not.

Q. Did the five appear in different dress from the rest?

A. No, only they appeared a more shining white.

Q. Did they first appear in the burying ground?

A. No, but in the field adjoining.

Q. How many do you suppose there were?

A. I cannot say, but the field appeared to be full at first, but the second appearance not so large—and further this deponent saith not.

WILLE her X mark HARMAN.

Sworn before me, this 5th day of September, 1818. WILLIAM RIBBLE,
Justice of Peace.

Sussex County, ss.
State of New-Jersey.

Personally appeared before me, William Ribble, one of the justices of the peace, in and for the said county, Sarah Harris, and being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that on the 21st day of August last, she was at the house of Mrs. Harman, and that she saw in the field of Mr. Raub, a large number of beings resembling men, men dressed in white, moving about the field in great confusion for a considerable time, as if they were climbing over each other, seemed to raise in the air and disappeared; and further this deponent saith, that she saw a second company in the air, which appeared to move on in the same direction as first, and disappeared; and further this deponent saith not."

WILLIAM RIBBLE,

Sussex County. ss.—State of New-Jersey.

Personally appeared before me, John Summers, one of the justices of the peace, in and for said county, maj. Samuel Raub, and being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that on the 21st day of August inst. about six o'clock in the afternoon, as he was returning from the mill of Mr. Andrew Raub, he the said deponent was called by Mr. Harman, and on looking to said field, could not at first discover any thing, but on being directed more particularly to the place, he this deponent, saw in the air about 50 feet high or upwards, as he supposed, nearly one hundred men in white apparel, floating along in the air, in a northerly direction; and further this deponent saith, that he saw them for the space of ten or fifteen minutes when they by degrees disappeared, and further this deponent saith not.

SAMUEL RAUB.

Sworn before me, this 28th day of August, 1818.

JOHN SUMMERS,
Justice of the Peace.

From the Federal Gazette—to the Editor of the Washington City Gazette.

JONESBOROUGH, Oct. 6.

SIR.—Having seen in your paper of the 22d ult. under the London head, an anecdote respecting General Jackson, which appears to be copied from a statement made in the Morning Chronicle; and as the affair alluded to happened in this village under my own eye, I will take the liberty of stating the facts—by which you will see that neither of the statements are entirely correct.

It is a well known trait in the character of gen. Jackson that no man scarcely ever possessed more life and vivacity; and whilst setting as a judge although the dignity of the bench was maintained in a manner fully to correspond with the solemn and important duties he had to discharge, yet, when off the the bench, he not only enjoyed himself, but was the very life of the lawyers, and all around him. During the term he acted as judge at this court, there was a very awkward sheriff, who used to be the subject of great sport to the lawyers, and to those with whom he had business. At a session of the court a fellow named Russell Bean, who had received the rudiments of his morals from the first settlers of the country, besides being constitutionally depraved, commenced a most violent attack on a man named M'Cormick, with a stick, and beat him most furiously. A warrant was issued and given to the sheriff to execute. Bean, in the meantime, got on his horse with a rifle, and bid defiance. The sheriff seemed, as usual, rather bashful about executing the process, and commenced summoning a posse, about the tavern door. The court had just adjourned for dinner, and the judge was in the crowd; some of the lawyers waggishly told the sheriff to summon the judge, as he was as much bound to go as they were; accordingly he was summoned. The judge immediately told the sheriff to get them horses wherever he could find them, and in the mean time they would furbish up their pistols and get matters ready. Bean, finding a storm brewing, retreated a few hundred yards; and whilst the sheriff was getting horses, the judge, with the bar, and a deout on foot in quest of Bean, who they soon found. He was ordered on the spot to halt, but not choosing to do so, Deuny Brazelle, being foremost, and Bean having a hill to rise, he gained on him so as to make the effect with a pistol a little doubtful, and fired, whether with intent to kill, or not, I never understood; but Bean stopped—when the judge advanced near enough to do mischief, and threatened, if he did not instantly surrender, he would empty the contents of his pistol into him; whereupon Bean surrendered. They then turned about, and he followed them to town. As the district court had not, at that time cognizance of offence, he was bound over to the court that had, and was punished.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24. 1818.

The General Assembly of the island of Jamaica have voted to present a memorial to the British Prince Regent, representing "the dreadful evils which they are threatened with" by the new navigation system of the United States; and praying that measures may be adopted to avert them.

The beautiful & valuable farm at Cumberland head, granted to Com. M'Donough by the Legislature of Vermont, is not yet in the possession of that gentleman. This farm became the property of the State by mortgage, for a valuable consideration; but it is reported that the Commodore found a person in possession whose claim was undisputed, the date of his mortgage being somewhat the oldest! if this proves correct, the Legislature now in session, will unquestionably, as the grant was made in good faith, repurchase the premises, or give an equivalent.

At the recent cattle show and fair, in Oneida county, (N. Y) a hog was exhibited that girted 6 feet, was ten feet long, and weighed 800 lbs.; he was sold for 100 dollars.

Governor Clinton has offered a reward of 250 dollars for the apprehension of John Van Alstine, charged with the murder of William Huddleston, a deputy sheriff of Schoharie county, (N. Y.) He is a man of about middle size, slender built, lean in the face, grey eyes, and down-cast look, and had on when he went away a black coat and pantaloons, and bottle greed vest; also a snuff-colored surtout coat, and black hat. He speaks high and low Dutch, and broken English.

[From the New-York Gazette, Oct. 23.]

We are desired to state, that a man who calls himself John L. Schuyler, was, in June last, imprisoned for passing counterfeit money, and when apprehended, was in possession of several hundred dollars of spurious bank bills. During his trial at Flatbush, before Judge Furman, Schuyler acted the part of a maniac. In the presence of the Court, and while the Judge was on the bench, he amused that honorable body with all kinds of grimaces, and every now and then threw a somerset. At intervals he would try on the hats of those nearest him, and grin at the Court. At times, he would dance a hornpipe, and at others " cut a pigeon wing." But the finest caper of all, was that which he cut just as the Judge began to pronounce his sentence. He made a splendid somerset over the top of the railing of the Court House cage, and repeated them several times down the stairs, over the heads of by-standers; and with a hat on his head which did not belong to him, made his final escape to the woods, back of the Court House.

Tuesday Morning, Nov. 3.

"The Democratic Press" of Philadelphia, has given us as authority for making Mr. Baldwin a candidate for Governor at the next election. The assertion is going the rounds, through all the papers of the state. We beg leave to inform Mr. Binns, and the other editors who have inserted this annunciation, that they labour under a gross mistake. So far from having mentioned Mr. Baldwin as a candidate, we never thought of it. We belong to that small class of politicians who are for letting the people themselves arrange these matters, and with these notions, we should consider it as highly impertinent in us, to be pointing out to them what to do already, in an election which is not to take place for two years.

What may be the views of the republican party, of which we consider Mr. Baldwin one of the leaders, we have not enquired; they have not taken us into their confidence; at this distance it is impossible for us to say what line of conduct we shall adopt, or whom we shall support. We feel bold to say, however, that we shall act as we think independent citizens ought. We believe most of our friends who took a part in the late election, voted for Henry Baldwin. We advocated the moderate republican side, but certainly with no political view. A much more important motive operated on us; the distress of our country swallowed up every thing like party feeling. We thought of nothing but of the means of checking this encrease of adversity. We saw that relief, if within reach at all, must come from the Congress of the U. States, but we also perceived, owing to the variety of clashing interests in that body, that talents of a peculiar order would be required to command success. In looking round, we found, in our opinion, but one man besides Mr. Baldwin, in all our district, who possessed these kind of talents. Under these impressions alone did we support this gentleman. As to his politics, we are perfectly indifferent; we are satisfied with the measures of the general government; they are what we contended for twenty years ago. Mr. Baldwin on the floor of Congress pledged himself to support the administration, and he has pledged himself to this district to support it. Just at this period we think more of this latter pledge than of any thing else. We therefore beg leave to request Mr. Binns and the other editors who have transcribed his impressions, to correct the error. We have not as yet set ourselves up as the oracle for the district. What may be our ideas at the next governmental election it is difficult to say; at all events we shall give no pledge so far in advance.

The account of Col. D. Boon's death, published in a Chillicothe paper, is entirely a fabrication, probably framed for the purpose of introducing the fanciful incident of this heroic woodsman,* breathing his last with his cheek pressed against the butt of his favourite rifle. We have lately seen a gentleman who was at Col. Boon's house in August last, when the old gentleman was perfectly healthy, and wore the appearance of not being more than 65 years of age, although he is between 80 and 90. His sight had failed him so much as to unfit him for his accustomed amusement and business of hunting. This is almost the only symptom of old age which appears to affect him. The chase with him was a passion which he indulged to extravagance.—When the periodical hunting season arrives, he represents himself as labouring under the most restless anxiety for some days, and he declares that nothing can compensate him for the pleasure he is deprived of in not being able to pursue the buffaloe and deer as formerly, to the centre of the Missouri deserts.

The family of Col. Boon, consisting of his sons and daughters, with their wives and husbands, live near each other and form a most interesting groupe. So far from the characteristics of savage life which they have been represented to possess, the sons are described to us as well bred gentlemen, distinguished by some of those grand features of mind which are so often found in our native sons of the forest. They own a fine estate in land granted to the individuals of the family by the crown of Spain. They are eminently useful to strangers who explore the lands on the Missouri and Osage, and the hospitality of every branch of this family is the theme of every traveller who extends his journey to the neighbourhood of their settlement.

* If our favoured Dennie were still on the throne of American taste and criticism, we should scarcely have dared to make use of the phrase, "Woodsman." But, as neither the term woodman or forrester conveys a correct idea of the occupation of our son of nature, we must be satisfied with an American word even if our critics protest against its legitimacy.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

The "injustice of republics" is an expression or sarcasm frequently quoted by the enemies of this form of government: and has ever been to them, a favourite term of reproach, while the apparent justness of the remark has precluded the possibility of its denial; and the only palliative we have had to offer is, that all republics which have preceded us, have been equally subject to the imputation. This reproach applies more directly to the neglect of our great military men, whose services, if not more useful, were more conspicuous and more splendid than those distinguished in the civil employment of the state; their duties were more arduous, more difficult and dangerous, and with fewer opportunities in the pressure of public affairs, of securing to themselves fortunes for their support, when those services have been forgotten, with the dangers which called them into action.

Our government has been unable or unwilling to exempt itself from this very just, but very unpleasant charge; but if we suffered the most distinguished officers of our first war to live or languish in obscurity and poverty, I hope we shall not improve upon our claim to this reproach by suffering them to dwell unknown and undistinguished in that little spot of earth, which is at last all that their countrymen have assigned them—the end—the reward of all their glorious toils, their troubles, dangers and difficulties. We have the example of the Greeks and Romans, who, however ungrateful to their most distinguished men while living, never failed to distinguish and honour their memories after death, by erecting monuments of brass or marble, and inscribing upon these the different services rendered by the deceased, in his life time, to the republic, thus perpetuating their glory, and giving it for future ages to admire and to emulate, and making, hallowed the spot of interment.

A visit made a few days since to a neighbouring town, threw me into these reflections. It was Sunday, and having anticipated a few minutes the commencement of divine service, I was attracted from the door of the meeting house to a cluster of graves irregularly spreading over the common hard by, and a small crowd of citizens who had assembled around a grave newly dug, and which all seemed to be eyeing intently; no one spoke, but every person in this little group appeared deeply interested in the contemplation, as I presumed, of the virtues of some friend or some general benefactor of his little neighbourhood, and for the loss of whom they were thus silently enumerating their several causes for grief and regret. I had been contemplating this scene for a minute, when my attention was suddenly arrested by an exclamation from one of this crowd, "Great man, this is all that has been assigned you at last." Although I had understood the subject of their reflections (of which I was now informed) had died and been buried near that place a few days before, I was struck with awe, astonishment, and a thousand various affecting feelings, when my enquiring glance was answered by the same person, as he pointed to it, "That, sir, is the grave of Major General Arthur St. Clair!"—With the name of this man, heretofore, had my imagination ever presented me associated in closest connection the brilliant scenes of his earlier life. The recollection of his distinguished post; his many battles; his arduous duties, and the complicated difficulties of all his various commands; his firm courage; his unshaken constancy, and above all, his unvaried and glowing patriotism, had ever filled my mind with the warmest feelings of love, veneration, esteem and regard. A grave marked at each end by the points of two flat stones which itself had yielded, was all by which even the inhabitants of Greensburgh could know it, and in a range with some half a dozen of others, undesignated, undistinguished from the common herd that daily moulder from our sight, and receive their last human rites within the precincts of the same common burying ground, lay one of the most illustrious supports of our right to being a free nation. A free people are ever generous, however parsimonious may be the adopted policy of their government; and the free and more independent part of your community having so fully succeeded in their late election of their candidates to our state legislature, it becomes their duty to answer the fullest expectation of that generous and liberal feeling with which they were supported. To this end, as one object, I would point out to their early attention, the remains of this truly great man. So much injured and neglected in life, I hope we shall not contiue this ingratitude by extending it beyond the grave.

As we love and value our freedom, let us shew our love and veneration for those who fought for and gave it to us. And if we have neglected it in this life, let us at least say, that we have shown it for their memory, I would propose that a monument or some other testimonial of the respect and esteem of this state, be erected to the memory of Gen. St. Clair, by the state itself, or by some other means under its authority.

THE YELLOW STONE EXPEDITION.

Extract of a letter from an officer who witnessed the embarkment of the troops, to his friend in Cincinnati, dated.

"Belle Fontaine, Sept. 4.

"The movements of the troops up the Missouri took place on the 30th ultimo. They started about 350 strong, in high spirits. Their equipment is very extensive, and well selected. Six boats, and a tender accompany the detachment. I believe the number of the command falls very far short of the expectations of government; but, it is all sufficient to meet and chastise hostility, should it be attempted, which, at present, is not expected. I accompanied them as far as St. Charles, which is said to be the worst part of the river: the buoyancy of their spirits encreased, on finding the comparative ease with which they could surmount difficulty."—Inquisitor.

LATEST FROM CALCUTTA.

We have received papers from Calcutta by the Mentor, to the 25th May. The war between the natives and the British in the East Indies is carried on with great destruction to the former. On the 27th of April, the strong fortress and town of Mundeliah was reduced after a long seige, and fell into the hands of the British troops. The inhabitants suffered much during the siege, and great numbers were cut to pieces in attempting to escape after the enemy had entered the town. In the adjacent woods, numbers were found dying of their wounds, and of hunger and thirst.

Decomposition of Opium.—A German chymist have succeeded in decomposing opium. The active principle which he has isolated, he has called Morpheine.—This principle combined with a peculiar acid, which he calls meconiac, forms opium. The Morpheine is strongly alcaline and chrystalizes in prisms. It is white, little soluble in water, soluble in alcohol, particularly when heated. It forms simple and triest salts—decomposes metallic oxides, &c. Three grains of Morpheine given internally, are equal to ten drops of laudanum. The name of the chymist who has made this discovery, is Seaturner.

MADAME CATALANI.

On the 1st of this month, Madame Catalani gave her first concert, at which 560 tickets at two ducats each, were disposed of. Her second concert was less numerously attended. This afternoon a very interesting scene took place at Prince Joseph Schwartzenberg's, where a dinner was given to a party. The Countess Bombelles was singing in a most delightful manner; all present were quite fascinated, when the door opened, and Madame Catalani entered. The Countess stopt; but Madame Catalani, in a most engaging manner, endeavoured to prevail on her to proceed. The Countess resumed her singing; the fair Ida fascinated the audience more and more; among others Goethe was present, and seemed quite overpowered. "We are much more at home with these tones," he said; it is the German heart which sounds responsive to us." The Countess Bombelles, carried away herself by the impression which she had produced, now sung most enchantingly, and at length began, accompanied by her husband, on the harpsichord, 'Kennst du das Land.' The whole company were powerfully agitated; Goethe had tears in his eyes. Madame Catalani now began to feel uncomfortable; she grew pale, and declared herself indisposed. At once the interest of all was turned towards her, though it was impossible not to perceive that an attack of jealousy was the real cause of her indisposition. The Countess Bombelles, supported by all the gentlemen and ladies present, urgently entreated her to sing. She sung an Italian Romance, but feebly, almost timidly, and under deep agitation. No applauses could give her confidence.

Algem. Zeitung.

A most horrid crime was committed at Toulouse on the 14th inst. by a young female, who assassinated her own brother. Madame Mazas had become guarrantee for her brother for the sum of 1300 francs.—Before the note was due, her husband went to Moissac to receive the amount, according to his engagement; but his brother-in-law gave him a very evasive and unsatisfactory answer, saying he would see him at Toulouse. Mazas, on his return, informed his wife of the manner in which he had been received, and the latter indignant at such conduct, only thought of being revenged. On the arrival of her brother, she purchased a large knife; she then went to him, and after loading him with the most violent reproaches, plunged the knife into his heart. The unfortunate victim fell at her feet, and instantly expired. The assassin left the house without any emotion, and went to her own residence to change her dress. She was immediately taken into custody, and on being interrogated by the Judge d'Instruction, she calmly replied, that if she had shed the blood of her brother, she had strong motives for so doing, and that the want of sincerity on the part of the victim had inflariated her mind, and led her to the commission of the deed.

IMPORTANT.

We have it from authority which we deem next to official, (says the N. York Gazette of Saturday,) that our differences with the court of Madrid are settled. The Floridas are ours, and our government is to pay the American claims against Spain.

Captain Endicott, of the brig Dawn, who arrived at Salem on Wednesday last, in 58 days from St. Petersburg, saw the U. S. Frigate Guerriere, lying in the outer roads of Copenhagen, on the 3d of September; and on the 10th of the same month, in lat. 56, 32, and long. 5, 15, E. in the North Sea, he saw the U. S. ship Hornet standing to the South West.

A letter received at Washington City, from England which was shown to the editor, states, that upwards of ninety families will set out early next spring, chiefly farmers, with a view of settling in Illinois or Indiana. A general fund has been raised, and agents appointed from amongst themselves for managing their concenrs conveniently and economically. Similar associations, in different parts of England, are forming for the same purpose.—Wash. C. Gaz.

It is stated in one of the London papers "on the highest authority," that it is "the declared purpose of the Emperor Alexander, the moment the Congress commences its sitting at Aix-la-Chapelle, to insist on Bonaparte's being allowed to return to Europe, and either to live in England as a prisoner of war, on his parole; or, should our government refuse its assent to the proposition, at all events to insist upon his removal forthwith from the barren rock upon which he is at present confined."

Extract of a letter.

Gibraltar, Aug. 28.

"I have the pleasure to advise that the frigate United States, in 12 days from Leghorn, arrived yesterday—she returns to-morrow.—Com. Stewart was at Leghorn, with the rest of the squadron, about to sail—I have not been able to learn their destination—supposed to be Tunis and Messina.

"I give you an extract from a letter dated Cadiz, 24th Aug.:—"It is said 17,000 troops are to be embarked for South America, and Gen. O'Donnell arrived express from Cadiz day before yesterday." You can make your own conclusions.

To the Editor of the N. Orleans Chron.

Panzacola, Sept. 19.

Sir—We are waiting with anxiety for the United States to take formal possession of this place, and for the establishment of a regular system of government. Our government at present is a military one exclusively, and of course not very highly relished. Panzacola contains at this time about fifteen hundred buildings, one third of which are dwelling houses: it is probably in a more delightful situation than any town in the southern country, and decidedly more healthy. Many northern people have spent the season here thus far, without a single death, nor scarcely a case of sickness.

This place will and must be a place of safe and fashionable resort during the summer and sickly months. The harbor is exceeded by none in the world perhaps two thousand ships may ride in perfect safety. Fort Carlos de Barancas is six miles below the town, and commands the entrance into the harbor. The country in the neighborhood is very far from being fertile; but all this part of the country produces the grapes in great luxuriance, and will one day be to the United States what Spain is to Europe. Lands on the Escambia are good, as also on Yellow Water and the different bayous and creeks. The Indians are routed—scarcely one is seen throughout the country. Many of them have passed on to cross the Mississippi.

KAMSCHATKA.

In a Calcutta paper brought by the ship Mentor, mention is made of the arrival of the brig Brothers, from Ochotsk on the coast of Siberia. The above vessel had sailed from Calcutta, and it is stated to be the first that had attempted a trade from Calcutta to that quarter of the world. Her passage; it is said, was favorable and pleasant from the Straits of Malacca and that she had made the coast of Japan several times. She entered the harbor of Ochotsk on the 4th of October; which is represented as a safe harbor, though vessels drawing over 12 feet water are not able to pass the bar. She found the country entirely covered with snow; landed her cargo, and set sail in a few days, as the frost had began to set in, and the ice rapidly to accumulate. The country represented as being poor, though affording sufficient encouragement to keep up an intercourse with India, from which place, in future, their supplies will be drawn.

The Russian government maintain five transports in those seas for the purpose of preserving the necessary intercourse with Kamschatka; and the Russian American company have from 12 to 15 sail employed at their settlements on the North West Coast, which are stated to be increasing, and in order to provide them with requisite supplies, the company have possessed themselves of the island of Mowee, one of the Sandwich groupe.

MARRIED, on Thursday evening last, by the Rev. Mr. M'Elroy, Mr. ARCHIBALD MONTGOMERY, of this city, to Miss ELIZABETH HARTEPEE, daughter of Mr. Joseph Hartepee, of Washington County.

Original.

Lines on T. Moore's Poetry, published in the Greensburgh Gazette, on 11th January, 1817.

Shame to the bard whose lawless song,
Wou'd blend the bounds of right and wrong,
And steal with smooth, licentious art
Its honied poison o'er the heart,
Till every pulse of foul desire,
Throb with the flush of passions fire,
And love and reason's mild controul,
Sink in the whirlwind of the soul.

Shame to the bard, whose am'rous sighs
Can find no charm in beauty's eyes,
Nor raptures on the guileless breast,
Where peace with virtue loves to rest—
Save while he hopes those eyes to shade,
In sorrows which himself had made,
And swell that breast with every woe,
Which grief and keen remorse can know.

Could wisdom's love no lesson give,
To shew the world how sages live;
Could valor's deeds no theme supply,
To teach the soldier how to die;
Could David's harp or Jubal's lyre,
No strain of holy hope inspire—
That thus the son of song should prove
The pandar to licentious love!

Shame to the bard! Tho' genius' sun
May gild the mischief he has done;
Tho' thoughtless thousands vie to shed,
Fame's brightest honors round his head:
Yet sad morality will deem
Such triumph but an idle dream,
While stern religion points his doom,
To age of grief and death of gloom.

It is divided into three separate tracts, on each of which there are handsome improvements; the land is of the best quality, well timbered, and not subject to overflow. It is universally esteemed, both as to soil and situation, the finest property in the western country. The proprietors would prefer selling the whole in a body, but to suit purchasers, it may be divided into three tracts.

The terms may be known by applying to Major Isaac Craig on the premises, or to the subscriber, who is agent for the proprietors, at his office in Pittsburgh.

JAMES HALL,
Attorney at Law.

July 24, 1818.

☞ The editors of the Lancaster Journal, Berks and Schuylkill Journal, and Village Record, will insert the above 3 times, and forward their accounts to the office of the Pittsburgh Gazette for payment.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale the following very valuable Tracts of Land situated in Beaver county, North-Sewickly township, state of Pennsylvania, in Leets' district of depreciation lands: viz.

No. 190—216 acres or thereabouts, with allowance—On which tract is erected a good frame dwelling house, a barn, and other out houses, with about 30 acres cleared, and an excellent spring before the house.

No. 178—130 acres—To this tract belongs one third part of a Saw-Mill and has about 18 acres cleared.

No. 173—208½ acres and allowance, on which is cleared about 16 acres. These three tracts lay contigious to each other, and have between 3 and 400 acres of first rate bottom land, and particularly calculated for grazing farms, and large dairies—it is well watered by Connequenessing and Brush creeks, besides small brooks and springs—with a good Mill seat on Brush creek—lying in a very thriving settlement, from 5½ to 6 miles from two Iron works, and surrounded by 4 merchants mills, at the distance of 1½ to 6 miles; it is about 5 miles and a half from Harmony, 9 miles from Beaver town, and 25 from Pittsburgh.—For further information, apply to Stephen Runyon, esq. near the premises or to Dr. James Agnew, in Pittsburgh, as that gentleman is perfectly acquainted with the above property, or to the subscriber.

ALSO

1150 acres of first rate upland, on Toby's or Stump creek, Armstrong county, from 2½ to 6 miles from the Allegheny river: viz.

No. 450—containing 333 acres, with a good improvement on it.

No 891—400 acres, with two good improvements on it, with about 60 acres cleared.

No. 404—containing 409 acres, with two improvements on it, and a Tan-yard, lying on the waters of Cherry run. These lots are of a superiour quality, and have the advantage of water conveyance, and would be valuable to proprietors residing on them.

Hamilton Hall,

10 miles from Pittsburgh, on the Monongahela river, containing 205 acres of land—of which there is about 140 acres of first rate river and creek bottom, with an excellent stream of water, on which is erected a new Saw-Mill: it is deemed unnecessary to say any thing in praise of this property as it is well known to be one of the handsomest Farms in Allegheny county; and as it is presumed that persons wishing to purchase will take a minute survey of this property, in every respect worthy the attention of monied men. No objection would be made to take in part pay, good property in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia or Baltimore, at a reasonable valuation. To Tanners Distillers, & Farmers.

THE subscriber assignee of JARED OLD'S PATENT IRON MILL for Grinding Bark, Corn and Cobb, &c. for the States of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, informs the public that they are made and kept for sale by Mr. George Sutton who is sole agent in Pittsburgh to sell Mills in those states, their utility in grinding bark is well known and established to be the best in use. To Distillers they answer a valuable purpose to shell corn and grind the cobb, and by distilling the cobb it is found to make a saving of about one fifth of this method.—To Farmers, to grind feed for cattle, the mill will crack nearly all the corn and grind the cobb quite fine—There are now a considerable number of those mills in use for that purpose, and are highly approved of—Distillers and Farmers in the above states are solicited to make trial of them.—I will warrant them to answer the purpose as described.

Orders for mills will be attended to by Mr. George Sutton, where they can only be had in Pittsburgh, and will be by him forwarded.

For the information of the public I give this NOTICE.

That all mills, sold in the above states by agent of Luther Gale, is an infringement on my right, nor has there any of Gales's mills been sold or used in the western country for grinding bark to my knowledge. Jared Olds' improvement consists of an Iron hopper cast solid on the cylinper or tube and cogs or sharp pointed teeth placed in rows on the inside of the mill. I therefore forbid all persons from making, using or selling mills of the above description in Ohio, Kentucky nd Tennessee, without authority from myself r Alvin Bates and our agents, as all persons ound violating said patent, may rest assured that sooner or later they will pay us for our right, if there is law and justice to recover it

The most VALUABLE PROPERTY on the West side of the Mountains offered

FOR SALE.

Plumpsock Iron Works.

WITH about 350 acres of land belonging thereto, will be offered for sale by public vendue, if not previously sold at private sale, on Tuesday, the 18th day of August next, at the Court House, in the the borough of Uniontown. This establishment consists of a forge, rolling mill, grist and saw mills. Also, a large brick dwelling house, furnished in a handsome style, with many other dwellings for the accommodation of workmen, and extensive stabling. It is situate in Fayette county, state of Pennsylvania, in the midst of a highly cultivated country on the state road, nine miles east of Brownsville, on the Monongahela river, and the like distance of Connellsville on the Youghiogheny river, five miles northwest of Uniontown, and thirty nine from the city of Pittsburgh. Bar iron is made in this forge by rolling instead of hammering, of a superior quality. Stone coal is the only fuel used in making it, an inexhaustible pit of which is within one hundred yards of the forge. Three men with a horse and cart are sufficient to raise, coke and haul to the forge all the coal necessary for keeping the works in full operation. They are in good order, the machinery almost new. This property is perhaps the most valuable of its kind in the United States, and by suitable attention, it is believed, may be made the most profitable in its operations.

There will be sold also, at the same time and place, the following

HOUSES AND LOTS,

situate in the borough of Union, to wit:

1. The corner house and lot of ground situate on the north side of Elbow street, immediately east of the Court House, No. 20, being the most eligible as well as the most valuable lot of ground in town.

2. That large House and lot of ground No. 3, and part of the adjoining lot, on the west or the north side of Elbow street, in the occupancy of Cuthbert Wiggins as a tavern stand, fronting on said street about one hundred and thirteen feet.
